The Bangladesh Institute of Planners (BIP) is the national organization of Urban and Regional/Rural Planners of the country. The Institute was established in 1974 for the advancement of the profession. The process of setting it up had started much earlier, in the previous decades, when there were only a handful of qualified planners in the country. Today, more than a hundred young planners are being graduated every year from our public universities, and the Institute has about 1000 members.

The objectives of BIP include the promotion of fellowship, co-operation and coordination among its members, the promotion of the art, science, practice and business of physical planning in all its branches, laying down and upholding the professional code of ethics, promotion of research on planning, advising governmental and other organizations on planning and development control issues, advising planning schools, sharing professional ideas and experiences with other related agencies etc.

In its pursuit, BIP has been playing an important role in sharing professional ideas and experiences with public sector agencies, professional bodies and donor agencies working in the field of urban and regional/rural planning. BIP believes in wider participation of the people of all sections of the society in the planning process for inclusive and sustainable development and is deeply committed to continuing its efforts in the planned development of Bangladesh in future.

Dedication

Dedicated to the millions who undergo extreme hardships in their day to day lives, because of lack of planning and development control in the spatial context and land use management; and the new generation of planners who are passionately awaiting for a policy shift in the societal approach for planned development so that they can make valuable contribution in the process of planning and development of their beloved country, Bangladesh
